November 2016
Opinion Poll

Prepared for

THE SUNDAY TIMES

Prepared by Ian McShane
J.7806

Technical Appendix

Technical Appendix

- The results of this opinion poll are based upon a representative sample of 924 eligible Irish voters aged 18 years +.
- As such, the results can be deemed to be accurate to within plus or minus 3.3 percentage points at the 95% confidence level.
- Fieldwork was conducted on an in-home, face-to-face basis over the period 1st – 9th November 2016.
- The sample was stratified across all constituencies at 125 locations in the country with individuals selected for interview by way of Demographic Quotas (age, gender, socio-economic status) in line with Central Statistics Office (CSO) and market research industry population estimates.

Technical Appendix

- The subsequent survey results are weighted to reflect the known demographic profile of Irish adults, utilising the most recently published census population estimates from the Central Statistics Office (CSO).
- Party support levels are subsequently realigned in accordance with a technical adjustment factor, designed to smooth the effects of extreme highs and lows in support levels for individual parties as measured at a single point in time, and taking variable election day turnout levels into account.
- All aspects of the survey, including the Party Support adjustment factor, are implemented in accordance with the technical and ethical guidelines set down by the Association of Irish Market Research Organisations (AIMRO) and the European Society of Opinion & Market Research (ESOMAR).

Party Support Adjustment Factor: Technical Note

- Predicting election results on the basis of poll data is not an exact science. All the evidence shows that support for individual parties can swing dramatically in the period between elections- very often outside the bounds of historic election results.
- What to do in these circumstances? Most polling companies in Britain and Ireland publish their raw survey results as an index of fluctuations in the emotional mood of voters. They also build in an adjustment based on a number of factors. Where we have reports of how people voted in the last general election as well as how they intend to vote in the next one we can use these data to model the likely level of swing from the last election results.
- We then add back in the forecasts of voters who have not voted last time or do not answer that particular question.
- Finally we take into account each individuals stated likelihood of voting in a forthcoming General Election.
- This is the basis of the adjusted voting forecast in Behaviour & Attitudes polls.

 - ❖ All who state they would definitely vote
 - ❖ Weighting of those respondents who give a definite answer as to who they would vote for in a general election and who they voted for in the last election, a quarter of the way between stated voting intention and the result of the last election.
 - ❖ Making no adjustment to stated voting intention of those who do not indicate how they voted in last election.

Sunday Times/Behaviour & Attitudes Opinion Poll Series

Background

Last month's Behaviour & Attitudes'/Sunday Times poll was conducted against the backdrop of the resolution of the Dublin Bus strike and, more importantly, in the immediate lead in to the announcement of the 2017 Budget, which had been heralded by the Government as the first 'post austerity' budget in many years.

These reasonably positive factors at least partly explained the uplift in support for the mainstream Fine Gael and Fianna Fáil parties, with a dip in support for Sinn Féin, Labour and the smaller parties.

Since October's poll, the Budget has of course been announced. The details of the Budget revealed what seemed to be an attempt to give something small to every interest grouping, rather than focus on a set of primary areas in need of investment or tax reductions.

As such, the public's response to the Budget appeared muted at best, with many arguing that they have still yet to experience first hand any of the benefits of our reported economic recovery.

The inclusion of a first time buyers new homes grant in the budget was greeted with scepticism by many, with the fear being that the real beneficiaries of the initiative will ultimately be the developers who will take the opportunity to increase the price of new builds to the detriment of the consumer.

Background

Meanwhile, ASTI members went on strike, only to suspend their action temporarily to allow for negotiations on pay rises. Reactions to the Labour Court recommendations on Garda pay were mixed, in so far as they seemed to place the survival of the Lansdowne Road Agreement into doubt.

Certainly the clamour of calls for pay rises from representatives of other public sector workers raised the spectre of a prolonged and widespread period of industrial unrest.

All in all, therefore, the mood of the electorate during fieldwork for today's poll can best be described as anxious, and this was before the general sense of uncertainty sparked by the election of Donald Trump in the US!

Party Support and Leader Satisfaction Levels

All in all, Fine Gael will be pleased with the results of today's poll, on the basis that satisfaction with the Government has increased three percentage points since last month, to 34%. Enda Kenny's satisfaction rating as Taoiseach has increased accordingly, and is also up three percentage points to a satisfaction rating of 32% for November.

The most significant increases in Government satisfaction have been amongst those aged 55 years and older, and those either employed as blue collar workers or reliant on social welfare payments.

This would certainly seem to suggest that the increases in the State pension and other social welfare payments have been very well received by those most likely to benefit from them, regardless of the fact that they will not be implemented until March of next year.

Satisfaction with the Government has also increased significantly in rural areas and amongst the farming community. It is less obvious as to why this might be so, although the introduction of a restriction in the Budget on the VAT flat-rate scheme for unregistered farmers to try to ensure that excessive amounts of VAT are not collected may partly explain this bounce.

The only main party leader to have witnessed a statistically significant increase in satisfaction is in fact Gerry Adams as leader of Sinn Féin whose satisfaction has increased six points to 38% today. Adam's personal rating has increased particularly significantly in the Greater Dublin Area, and amongst male voters. Increases in satisfaction for the Sinn Féin leader have, however, registered across all age groups and socio economic groupings, although in general more voters are dissatisfied with Adam's performance (47%) than are satisfied (38%).

Party Support and Leader Satisfaction Levels

In keeping with the lift in satisfaction with both the Government and Enda Kenny, support for Fine Gael has also increased month-on-month, albeit by a statistically insignificant two percentage points. Closer analysis of the data reveals that the increase in Fine Gael's support has been amongst 18 to 54 year olds, with support for the Government party actually decreasing by seven points amongst older voters aged 55+. The party's fortunes have also declined somewhat in the Dublin area, where levels of Fine Gael support have dropped from 30% last month to 24% today.

Overall, therefore, Fine Gael will be pleased to see its support levels increasing amongst those people most likely to be in the workforce, as well as across rural areas in general. It will be less satisfied with its drop in support in the capital, where the party is now neck and neck with Fianna Fáil and Independents/smaller parties.

Fianna Fáil remains the most popular party in the country for the fourth consecutive poll. At 30% nationally, Fianna Fáil support remains on a par with its standing last month across all age, gender and socio-economic groupings, although it has increased marginally in Dublin where it now stands at 24% - identical to Fine Gael support in that area.

Over the last number of polls at least one of the overarching messages has remained consistent - i.e. Fine Gael and Fianna Fáil are battling for the hearts and minds of the electorate for the mantle of main establishment party, with little separating the two from a voter perspective.

Sunday Times/Behaviour & Attitudes Opinion Poll Series

Party Support and Leader Satisfaction Levels

Meanwhile, support for the Labour Party continues to haemorrhage, and at 3% support in this month's poll now nestles within the statistical margin of error for polls of this nature.

The party continues to be squeezed between the mainstream players on the one hand and Sinn Féin and smaller parties/Independents on the other, and urgently needs to articulate a distinct positioning vis-à-vis the alternatives if it is to survive beyond the next election.

Support for Sinn Féin remains identical versus the last poll in this series, at 17%. The party's fortunes have improved somewhat amongst younger 18 to 34 year old voters, as well as within the blue collar working C2DE constituency. Nevertheless, Sinn Féin trails the Independent/smaller party bloc in Dublin, where respective support levels are 15% (for Sinn Féin) and 26%.

As has been the case for a number of years, roughly half of the 20% expressing support for Independents/Others are likely to vote for a non-aligned independent candidate.

Of the balance, the lion's share of support is to the Independent Alliance (up from 4% last month to 5% this month), and the AAA/PBP Alliance (up one point to 3% today). In line with the level of activity generated by both Renua Ireland and the Social Democrats, virtually no support was registered for either.
