RESEARCH
& INSIGHT

Technical Appendix

Technical Appendix

Sample Size

The results of this opinion poll are based upon a representative sample of 932 eligible Irish voters aged 18 years+.

Fieldwork

As such, the results can be deemed to be accurate to within plus or minus 3.3 percentage points at the 95% confidence level. Fieldwork was conducted on an in-home, face-to-face basis over the period Thursday 3rd – Tuesday, 15th September, 2020.

Location

The sample was stratified across all constituencies at 125 locations in the country with individuals selected for interview by way of Demographic Quotas (age, gender, socio-economic status) in line with Central Statistics Office (CSO) and market research industry population estimates.

Technical Appendix

Weighting

The subsequent survey results are weighted to reflect the known demographic profile of Irish adults, utilising the most recently published census population estimates from the Central Statistics Office (CSO).

Party Support

Party support levels are subsequently realigned in accordance with a technical adjustment factor, designed to smooth the effects of extreme highs and lows in support levels for individual parties as measured at a single point in time, and taking variable election day turnout levels into account.

Guidelines

All aspects of the survey, including the Party Support adjustment factor, are implemented in accordance with the technical and ethical guidelines set down by the Association of Irish Market Research Organisations (AIMRO) and the European Society of Opinion & Market Research (ESOMAR).

Party Support Adjustment Factor: Technical Note

- Predicting election results on the basis of poll data is not an exact science. All the evidence shows that support for individual parties can swing dramatically in the period between elections- very often outside the bounds of historic election results.
- What to do in these circumstances? Most polling companies in Britain and Ireland publish their raw survey results as an index of fluctuations in the emotional mood of voters. They also build in an adjustment based on a number of factors. Where we have reports of how people voted in the last general election as well as how they intend to vote in the next one we can use these data to model the likely level of swing from the last election results.
- We then add back in the forecasts of voters who have not voted last time or do not answer that particular question.
- Finally we take into account each individuals stated likelihood of voting in a forthcoming General Election.
- This is the basis of the adjusted voting forecast in Behaviour & Attitudes polls.

Adjusted figures based on:

- All who state they would definitely vote
- Weighting of those respondents who give a definite answer as to who they would vote for in a general election and who they voted for in the last election, halfway between stated voting intention and the result of the last election.
- Making no adjustment to stated voting intention of those who do not indicate how they voted in last election.

Commentary

Background

Fieldwork for today's poll was conducted between Thursday 3rd and Tuesday, 15th September, 2020. Usually, our September poll heralds the return of the Dáil from summer holidays, but with a shorter than usual summer recess this year, the Dáil was in full swing as fieldwork for today's poll was conducted.

My commentary on the last Sunday Times/Behaviour & Attitudes poll conducted in July made reference to how difficult the Government's first few weeks in office had been, culminating in the 'disaster' of newly appointed Minister for Agriculture Barry Cowen's sacking by Taoiseach Micheál Martin.

As it transpired, the Government's first few weeks of turbulence was in fact only a taster of things to come, with a litany of mishaps unfolding since then.

Top of the list in this regard must be Golf Gate – a PR blunder of gargantuan proportions which resulted in the loss of an EU commissioner and Minister for Agriculture, and a public outcry around the perceived arrogance of such establishment figures in flouting public health guidelines.

To compound matters, Dara Calleary's subsequent replacement Charlie McConalogue was the fourth minister for Agriculture we have had within the last three months - surely an Irish, if not an international, record.

While the Government did receive praise from many quarters for its handling of the return of primary and secondary school pupils to the classroom, reactions to the Department of Education's marking system of the Leaving Certificate were less positive, with many examples of students disappointed with their grades and subsequent CAO offers.

Coinciding with all of the above has been a significant rise in Coronavirus cases in the Dublin region in particular, and the anxiety this has induced around potential increased restrictions in the capital in the weeks to come.

It has not been a good couple of months for the Government and Fianna Fáil in particular, and this is reflected in the findings of today's poll.

Party Support and Leader Satisfaction Levels

Against the background of the trials and tribulations of the Government discussed in the introductory section of this report, it is not surprising that Government satisfaction has dropped quite precipitously from 51% in July to 38% this month. The only sections of the population where a majority are satisfied with the manner with which the Government is running the country are the farming community (51% Government satisfaction) and Fianna Fáil supporters (63% satisfaction).

The public is clearly deeply worried about the Government's management of the on-going crisis, and the administration needs to get to grips with the situation to avoid losing public confidence entirely.

Since assuming the mantle of Taoiseach, Micheál Martin's Fianna Fáil has lurched from scandal to crisis, most of which have been of the party's own making. We hear through the media rumblings of discontent amongst the Fianna Fáil parliamentary party with their leader's autocratic management style, although an imminent leadership heave seems most unlikely in the current climate.

The new Taoiseach does not seem to have struck a chord with the electorate either, and his most recent personal satisfaction rating as Taoiseach represents a drop of nine percentage points since July. The fact remains that just 22% of the electorate voted for Fianna Fáil in the recent election, and Micheál Martin has work to do to convince the vast majority of voters that he can make a competent and credible Taoiseach.

Meanwhile, Leo Varadkar as Tánaiste and leader of Fine Gael, and Mary Lou McDonald as leader of Sinn Féin are held in quite high esteem, with a majority satisfied with the performance of both. Varadkar is especially popular amongst those aged 35 years+, rural voters, and within the professional working ABC1 socio economic grouping.

Party Support and Leader Satisfaction Levels

McDonald's popularity peaks amongst 18-34 year olds, C2DE blue collar working individuals and, interestingly, in rural areas. Alan Kelly's performance as leader of the Labour Party is generally appreciated, with approaching half of all voters satisfied with him. Kelly, along with his highly capable colleague, Aodhán Ó Riordáin will undoubtedly build on this positivity to grow its core party support levels over the coming months.

It is probably fair to say that Eamon Ryan's role in Government thus far has been over-shadowed by both Leo Varadkar and Micheál Martin, and the Green Parliamentary party will need to shout that bit louder to gain the attention and appreciation of the general public as it settles into its role as coalition partner.

For the second poll in a row, Sinn Féin and Fine Gael are neck in neck in party support, with Sinn Féin retaining its position as the most popular party in the country. Support for both parties is now significantly higher than its share of the vote in February's election and between them, the two parties command more than two-thirds of the popular vote in Dublin.

A number of interrelated factors have most likely propelled Sinn Féin to its current positioning including the fact that it has dominated the airwaves as the voice of the opposition, the stature and effectiveness of its party leader, and a growing sense of confidence amongst its shadow spokespersons across a range of key portfolios.

If the results of today's poll were replicated in an actual election, the most likely outcome would be a Sinn Féin led Government with Mary Lou McDonald as Taoiseach, either as part of a broad left coalition, or an alliance with Fianna Fáil under a newly elected party leader.

Intention to Travel Overseas

Against the backdrop of much toing and froing on the issue of Green List countries that Irish citizens may or may not travel to, we asked respondents in this month's poll how many months they felt it would be before they travel overseas again for a foreign holiday.

By this stage, practically all of us have given up on the notion of managing to get away for an overseas break this side of Christmas. People are a little more hopeful, however, about the prospect of a Spring 2021 break, with around one in five hoping to travel abroad between now and the end of next March.

At the other end of the scale, 46% believe it will be more than 12 months from now before they travel overseas, with a further 16% uncertain.
