Technical Appendix

Sample Size

The results of this opinion poll are based upon a representative sample of 912 eligible Irish voters aged 18 years+.

Fieldwork

As such, the results can be deemed to be accurate to within plus or minus 3.3 percentage points at the 95% confidence level. Fieldwork was conducted on an in-home, face-to-face basis over the period, Thursday, 27th Feb – Tuesday, 10th March 2020.

Location

The sample was stratified across all constituencies at 125 locations in the country with individuals selected for interview by way of Demographic Quotas (age, gender, socio-economic status) in line with Central Statistics Office (CSO) and market research industry population estimates.

Weighting

The subsequent survey results are weighted to reflect the known demographic profile of Irish adults, utilising the most recently published census population estimates from the Central Statistics Office (CSO).

Party Support

Party support levels are subsequently realigned in accordance with a technical adjustment factor, designed to smooth the effects of extreme highs and lows in support levels for individual parties as measured at a single point in time, and taking variable election day turnout levels into account.

Guidelines

All aspects of the survey, including the Party Support adjustment factor, are implemented in accordance with the technical and ethical guidelines set down by the Association of Irish Market Research Organisations (AIMRO) and the European Society of Opinion & Market Research (ESOMAR).

Party Support Adjustment Factor: Technical Note

- Predicting election results on the basis of poll data is not an exact science. All the evidence shows that support for individual parties can swing dramatically in the period between elections- very often outside the bounds of historic election results.
- What to do in these circumstances? Most polling companies in Britain and Ireland publish their raw survey results as an index of fluctuations in the emotional mood of voters. They also build in an adjustment based on a number of factors. Where we have reports of how people voted in the last general election as well as how they intend to vote in the next one we can use these data to model the likely level of swing from the last election results.
- We then add back in the forecasts of voters who have not voted last time or do not answer that particular question.
- Finally we take into account each individuals stated likelihood of voting in a forthcoming General Election.
- This is the basis of the adjusted voting forecast in Behaviour & Attitudes polls.

Adjusted figures based on:

- All who state they would definitely vote
- Weighting of those respondents who give a definite answer as to who they would vote for in a general election and who they voted for in the last election, half way between stated voting intention and the result of the last election.
- Making no adjustment to stated voting intention of those who do not indicate how they voted in last election.

Background

Fieldwork for today's poll was conducted over the period Thursday 27th February to Tuesday 10th March, 2020. As such, fieldwork straddled a twelve day period over which the general public's view of the Coronavirus epidemic changed from one of low level concern, to heightened anxiety.

During the early days of fieldwork for this poll, the various political parties were engaging with each other to compare policy positions and general views on Government formation, and the consensus was that serious negotiations on a programme for Government would only begin towards the end of March, or even early April.

The rapidly escalating Covid-19 crisis has of course changed everything, including the Irish political landscape, over an extremely short period of time.

At the time of writing, senior Fine Gael and Fianna Fáil politicians have begun to hold detailed talks on the formation of a Government, with negotiating teams established on both sides during the early part of last week.

Indeed, a Fianna Fáil, Fine Gael, Green Party and 'others' Government had up until last week appeared to be a racing certainty, with some suggesting it could well be in place by the end of March, given the urgent need for a functioning Government to manage the Coronavirus emergency. On Wednesday, however, this assumption was thrown into doubt as the Greens indicated they would prefer to see a National Unity Government formed for a period of at least three months.

Background

It is also highly debateable whether a Government involving Fianna Fáil and Fine Gael is what the public voted for just last month. With a view to answering this question, today's poll includes a special question which gauged the public's preferred coalition options, and the results make very interesting reading indeed.

Party Support and Leader Satisfaction Levels

What a difference a year makes.

This time last year, Government satisfaction stood at 38%, with in or around 40% of the electorate satisfied with the performance of all four main party leaders.

Fine Gael was riding high on 31% support, followed at some distance by Fianna Fáil at 25% and Sinn Féin on 19%. Fast forward to this week and the party political landscape has changed utterly. For the second Sunday Times/B&A poll in a row, support for Sinn Féin nationwide stands at 35%, the combined Fine Gael and Fianna Fáil support figure sums to just 40%, while the Green Party commands 6% of the potential first preference vote.

There are practically no differences between this week's B&A poll figures and those registered just two weeks ago, suggesting that Sinn Féin's vote was far more than a short-term knee-jerk reaction against the establishment, and that the drop in support for Fine Gael and Fianna Fáil was more than a temporary rap on the knuckles.

While satisfaction with the Government, Micheál Martin, Leo Varadkar and Brendan Howlin have all increased to varying degrees over the last couple of weeks, Mary Lou McDonald remains by far the most popular political leader in the country, with 54% of the electorate satisfied with the way she is doing her job as leader of her party. Appearing in the party leader line up in a B&A poll for the first time in a number of years Eamon Ryan, at 44% satisfaction, is the second most popular leader in the country, outstripping Micheál Martin in the popularity stakes by a full seven points.

Party Support and Leader Satisfaction Levels

A review of party support by key demographics reveals that support for Sinn Féin is highest amongst the 18-34 years age group (at 53%), and within the blue collar working C2DE socio economic grouping (44%).

The party is weakest in the 55 years plus age category at just 23%, and also within the white collar and professional working population, where its support stands at a still impressive 27%. Fine Gael's 21% support nationwide peaks at 31% amongst the over 55's, and at the same level within the farming community.

Meanwhile support for Fianna Fáil stands at 19% at a national level, rising to 25% within the 55 years+ category and 24% in rural areas. Just 10% of voters aged 18-34 years indicate they would give their first preference vote to a Fianna Fáil candidate in the event of another general election.

Support for the Green Party remains solid at 6% nationally, increasing to 10% amongst ABC1 voters, 8% in the 35-54 years age band, and between 8% and 9% across the Dublin and Greater Dublin regions.

Discussion of these figures and what they might mean in terms of the formation of a new Government would of course be rendered redundant in the event of a Fianna Fáil/Fine Gael plus grand coalition.

If such a coalition is formed, it would be another four or five years before another General Election, and the key question would be whether Sinn Féin begins to lose its lustre with voters over the next number of years, or whether it would gain in stature and support, emerging as kingmaker by 2025.

Coalition Option Preferences

Towards the end of the survey, respondents were asked which of a list of six potential coalition options they would most prefer for the next Government. In response, the vast majority of respondents selected one of the pre-identified choices, with just 18% declining to choose any.

At an overall level, 46% of Irish voters indicated that they would prefer to see a Government involving Sinn Féin, 46% opted for a coalition involving Fianna Fáil, and 38% went for one of the Government options which included Fine Gael.

The single most preferred coalition composition is that of a Sinn Féin, Green Party, Left Leaning Parties and Independents Government, with 29% of all voters expressing a preference for it. This option was particularly popular amongst voters aged 18 to 54 years, those from a C2DE blue collar working background and people living in urban areas.

The second most preferred Government option was a Fianna Fáil, Fine Gael and Green Party Government, which was selected by 21% of the electorate. This coalition composition was especially popular amongst the over 55's, and was the second most preferred Government solution in the Dublin area.

In joint third place on 11% popularity apiece were a Fianna Fáil, Sinn Féin and Green Party Government on the one hand, and a Fianna Fáil, Fine Gael and Independents Government on the other.

Finally, a Fine Gael, Sinn Féin and Green Party Government was the preferred choice of just 6% of voters, while just 3% opted for a Fianna Fáil, Green Party and Social Democrats minority administration.

Coalition Option Preferences

The lessons for Fianna Fáil, Fine Gael and the Green Party are clear from these findings. With just 21% of the electorate identifying such a Government as their preferred option, each of the participants in such an arrangement would have a lot of work to do to gain the electorate's trust, and convince it that it is capable of tackling the serious social and economic issues that gave rise to the results of last month's election.
